Bethesda Green Stimulates Green Job Creation with Internship Fair

Hundreds of Opportunities Available for Young People Interested in "Fields of Green"

Bethesda, MD – Recognizing the importance of helping young people get experience in the green industry sector, Bethesda Green is hosting its third annual "Fields of Green" Internship Fair Saturday, February 25th, 10:00 am – 2:00 pm at the Bethesda Green Office, 4825 Cordell Avenue, Suite 200, above the Capital One Bank. More than two dozen exhibitors – including businesses, nonprofits and government agencies – will be on hand to promote internships, jobs and apprenticeships.

Bethesda Green Executive Director Dave Feldman believes the internship fair fills a need on the part of students and employers alike. "When we launched our first Fields of Green Internship Fair in 2010, the idea was prompted by both ends of the employment spectrum, those looking for internship opportunities and those looking for interns. We're excited to once again provide college and graduate school-age young people an opportunity to meet representatives from a number of companies and non-profits offering job experience in the green business sector."

Attendees will be able to talk to representatives from companies and organizations such as the Student Conservation Association, The Nature Conservancy, Habitat for Humanity, Montgomery County Department of Environmental Protection and many more. A complete list of Fields of Green Exhibitors and Internship opportunities are available at www.bethesdagreen.org.
